DO NOT WAIT TO INOCULATE

By Wm A McBride, PhG PhCh, BS

The capable physician devotes a large part of his practice to keeping people well instead of trying to cure them

The scourges that once decimated whole nations have been conquered by science Smallpox, diphtheria, typhoid, can now be prevented by serums. Children need no longer suffer the terrible death of diphtheria, adults can escape smallpox, or typhoid, by proper inoculation.

Reactions from these serums can be determined so that one may know positively that one is immune from dread disease.

The purity of the serum used is of prime importance Skilled druggists provide them at a moment's notice Patronize a reliable pharmacist

The Rev D S. Haynes, pastor of the Presbyterian Church preached the baccalaureate sermon Sunday evening in the Methodist Church. He took for his text, Proverb 4:23. "Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life." After extending congratulations to those 46 students who had played the game and achieved, he said we were creatures of impulse and emotions and they should be carefully guarded That no one lives on an intellectual plane alone or wants to. There are emotional reactions that stir joy and pride that are not in the mind but from the heart. He considered money which should be weighed by intellectual balances and used and employed by reasoning ability and it was the love of what money can do for us in the way of luxuries, power, good or evil that do the harm. He then quoted Paul in the three essential possessions of the heart—Faith, Hope and Love The first essential is to be guarded for we are quick to criticize and faith is needed for things as well as persons, and with faith comes knowledge That faith can't prove that two and two make four, but faith is the persuasion that two and two make four. Faith is needed in government, men, God Mr. Haynes said he was sorry for the man with no hope It was the hope that brought results. To one who knew the answers, that knew the results, knew the futures, there would be no striving, no hope, and for love he used the illustration of the introvert and extrovert The former selfish, the latter generous. The one who gives makes the world brighter, receives the greatest benefit and satisfaction Scrooge was an example of finding the world a different place when he was the giver Disciplining emotions with right direction into channels for good and the heart trained brings a life time of achievement and benefit. The choir rendered a special anthem with Elmer Fisher at the organ. The pastor of the church, the Rev. S. A. MacCormac, presided at the opening of the service.

Elder A. Winthrop Williams occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian Church Sunday morning in giving some impressions of the 148th General Assembly of the church held recently in Syracuse. Mr Williams stated that there were some 30 churches in North River Presbytery and it had been some 30 years since this church had had a commissioner, the late Moses G Young, elected to the General or National Assembly, and at that time the Assembly met in Charleston. The election of Mr. Williams took place at the April meeting of Presbytery at the Storm King school held at Cornwall. He said the delegates, some 900 men, were designated by blue and gold buttons, bearing the words, Minister or Elder depending on the office the delegate held. He had been assigned to the hotel Syracuse and attended his first sessions in the Park Avenue church, and was impressed by its size and the organ. His seat mate was John Frank, a Nez Perce Indian, who had attended many such meetings and Mr Frank sang in his native tongue some of the church hymns. Impressive were the delegates from India, a Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, who had served the church there for 35 years, a young woman from the Kentucky mountains, a minister from the state of Washington, a sermon by an Englishman of 36 years who was converted from Catholicism and holds a church in Canada, an Eskimo from Alaska, the delegates from Idaho, and for entertainments the Cornell choir of 80 male voices, the religious play by men from the University of Pennsylvania, the negro singer, also the quintet from Johnson University. The religious fervor of the meetings was contagious he said

French, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Farleigh, Mr and Mrs. William Marion Martin, Palmer Pendleton, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver J. Tillson, Mrs. Christopher Dyckman.

A vacation Bible school will be held for one week starting next week in the lecture room of the Presbyterian Church. The Rev D. S. Haynes made the announcement Sunday morning The school will open at 9 o'clock with devotional service. A salute to both country and church flags, a Bible study with memory verses is followed by the fun period with songs, play time, stories, then the instructive arts. The morning school closes at 11 o'clock. A survey of pupils from Oakes to Riverside has been made and conveyances are available for the children from those districts. The success of such schools in other places has been known and a trial is being made here.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Noe, Jr., entertained Sunday afternoon from 4 until 7 o'clock the Misses Marian Williams, Barbara Merritt, Leah Bradt, Betty Young, John Battin, George Schoonmaker, Mr. and Mrs. Stockholm Baldwin, Mr and Mrs. J. J. Ennist, Mr and Mrs. Gordon E Wilcox, and Mr and Mrs Jack Wilkins, Mr. and Mrs Edward Barnes, Mr and Mrs. Gordon Parliman, Mr and Mrs Murray Connover, Mr and Mrs. Stanley Harcourt, Dr. and Mrs. McKeever, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Noe, Sr., of Newburgh, Mr. and Mrs Howard Tuttle, Mr. and Mrs. William Clarke, Mr. and Mrs Frank Baker of Marlborough

The rise of Landon will go down in history as one of the most remarkable events in American politics, whether he wins or loses in November Two years ago few persons outside of the middle west even knew who he was A year later he was a national figure And by the time the convention was 'round, it couldn't be questioned that his was the great measure of popular Republican support.

Replevin Action In County Court

One civil action was disposed of at a short session of county court Monday afternoon. An action in replevin brought by Isidore Miller and Arnold Greenspan, copartners, trading under the name of Ellenville Auto Sales, brought an action against Hubert Kelly and Reller Wood to recover possession of a Dodge auto truck.

Plainttiff claimed that on January 15, 1924, an agreement was entered into whereby the plaintiff sold to defendant Kelly a Dodge truck for the sum of $595, taking in trade a Reo truck valued at $30. There was to be a cash payment of $565. However, on April 6, 1934, there was an increase in the price of the Dodge truck and the contract was amended and the price agreed upon was $45 more. On April 7 the plaintiff Miller said Mr. Kelly came to his place of business and asked to take the truck out for the purpose of testing it on a hill. The truck was never returned and plaintiff said no payment was made. Later the truck was registered in the name of Reller Wood and continued to be used by Kelly. The registration certificate was dated May 23, 1934. It was testified the truck was now worth $140, having depreciated $500 in the past two years.

Joseph Kooperman asked to amend his complaint to conform to the proof. He said when the complaint was drawn the amount of damages asked was $200 but the truck had further depreciated in value since the complaint was drawn in 1934. The amendment was permitted.

There was no appearance on the part of the defendants and at the conclusion of testimony Judge Traver directed that findings be submitted to the court.

It was announced that a settlement had practically been reached in No. 23, William Zwick and Louis Schwartz against Camp Stuts, Inc., an action for goods sold and delivered but Elmor H. Nathan, attorney for plaintiff, asked that the case be postponed until today. Charles Cohen appeared for the defendant.

Jurors who were drawn on the extra panel in anticipation of the trial of a criminal action last week, were excused for the term. Only the original panel remain.

Court recessed until 10 o'clock today.

Miss Cohen Wins Spelling Contest

Miss Mildred R. Cohen of Accord was the winner in the county wide spelling match which was held at Room 9 in the local high school Monday afternoon and as a result of her ability to spell she will receive a trip to the State Fair at Syracuse in September to represent Ulster county in the statewide spelling match.

The Ulster county grade school students' annual spelling match was held Monday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock as is customary after the regents examinations. Students from three supervisory districts of the county were represented and the three districts were also represented by Miss Emily Burnett of District No. 1, Ralph H. Johnson of District No. 2, and J. Hartley Tanner of District No. 3.

Each of the student spellers was a winner in a town spelling match previously held

In the finals Mildred R. Cohen of Accord came in first with a mark of 100 per cent and as a result she will go to the State Fair to participate in the state match. Her expenses for the trip will be paid. There were three who tied for second place and in the spell off Helen Swominen of Rifton led with one word missed. Miss Swominen is a sister of last year's county champion.

These spelling matches are held each year under the auspices of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets and in cooperation with the district superintendents.

Secretary Perkins Favors Legal Method

Philadelphia, June 23—Secretary Frances Perkins says she would prefer to arrive at a minimum wage scale for labor by "trying the remaining possibilities under the Constitution."

The labor secretary has come here to appear before the Democratic resolutions committee and discuss the labor plank for the Democratic platform.

"Certainly we must put a bottom to such downward spirals of wages as we witnessed in 1932," she said. "But a constitutional amendment would consume valuable time. Maybe we can find a way to establish a minimum wage under the Constitution in its present form."

NAVIGATION NOTES

Eighty employes have been ordered to quit work by the International Longshoremen's Association and conferences are expected to be held today between the striking men and officials of the Connors Marine Co., Inc., operators of a fleet of barges and tugs on the Barge canal. The company's fleet of tugs and barges have been tied up by the strikers who are asking for Sundays off or time and a half for Sunday work. They now work every day in the month.

The strike tied up two convoys at Waterford locks. In the group are eight barges, two molasses boats and two tugs. The molasses is enroute to Port of Albany and the barges are loaded with soda ash from Solvay Process Co., at Syracuse, enroute to Rensselaer. Other craft are tied up at Herkimer, Baldwinsville and Little Falls. A conference was expected at Albany.

Sure, there's money in literature. The Republicans raised a quarter of a million on their convention book, and the Democrats over $300,000.

MORE OUTDOOR LIFE.

The Youth Hostel movement, started some years ago in Germany, has begun to spread in this country. The youth hostel is a shelter where groups of young folks who make bicycle trips, hike or ride horseback may put up for the night. They prepare their own food and generally "rough it." The first hostels in the United States were started in Massachusetts. There are now 35 such camps in New England, and others are planned. The idea is to have them follow bicycle paths and hiking trails through the open country instead of keeping to highways.

The movement is interesting for the evidence it gives of a well-established and growing interest in outdoor life on the part of American young people. Pessimists who deplore youth's supposed dependence for entertainment on movies, radio and automobiles are overlooking the tremendous amount of camping and tramping that is done these days. Members of Scout, Camp Fire or other outdoor groups have developed a feeling for woods and fields that their parents did not have. There are hiking clubs and nature study groups which take more and more indoor workers for week-ends out of doors. It all seems to indicate that we are achieving balance in recreation and entertainment.

PRESS AND RADIO.

To a greater extent than any previous political campaign, this one will be waged by radio. It is shown in the elaborate service provided by broadcasting companies for the national conventions. Much technical progress has been made by radio in four years, public men themselves have learned more about utilizing radio services, and the public is trained to listen for important proceedings.

The newspapers have improved their technique likewise, utilizing radio themselves to some extent, adopting marvelous new methods of photography, making larger expenditures than ever for thorough coverage. They have the advantage of time for more careful and complete presentation of events, and more accurate comment on them.

Broadly speaking, the newspapers have better facilities for reporting a big political campaign to the intelligent public. Radio's presentation is living, but superficial and fleeting. Neither method of communication interferes with the other makes it superfluous. The two complement each other and make business for each other.

POLITICAL REFUGEE.

It surprises an old-fashioned American to learn about the deportation of Otto Richter. Otto is a seaman, a youthful anti-Nazi, who three years ago refused to join the Nazis, was severely beaten by Storm Troopers and saved his life by fleeing from Germany. It was announced the other day that on June 12 Otto would be shipped back to Germany on the President Harding. When he arrives there, it is expected that he will be executed as a traitor.

This surprising action is said to have been ordered by the federal Department of Labor, under pressure from American civic groups who have been demanding the deportation of all aliens in whose presence or political views there seems to be anything irregular or objectionable to conservatives in this country. Unless there are facts in the case not made public, it is a reversal of the traditional American policy, laid down by Washington, Jefferson and other founders of our nation, that America should be a harbor for persecuted political refugees from other lands.

CANADIAN INVESTMENT.

Roger W. Babson, business statistician, who is supposed to have a keen eye for economic trends, proposes moderate investment in Canadian securities as a "hedge against a Fascist government in the United States." These securities, he adds, should be deposited in Canadian banks. A good many Americans will want to know immediately, "What do you mean—Fascist government?" Is this an insinuation against the Democrats or Republicans, or some group or individual that the ordinary citizen hasn't noticed yet?

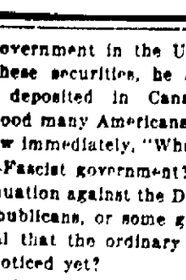

Be that as it may, Americans have been investing in Canada for many years, and have millions there. It is doubtless as safe as any foreign investment, and safer than most. The Canadians are more like ourselves than any other nation. Their country is almost as much a part of the North American economic system, which we dominate, as if there were no boundary between us. We are normally each other's best customers.

PUBLIC LOANS

After all the spending the government still has no difficulty in raising money. The recent offering of $1,000,000,000 in federal bonds and notes brought subscriptions of $7,054,000,000. Small bidders were given all they asked for, and those bidding for more than $5,000 got only 15 per cent. The bonds will bear 2¾ per cent interest.

Evidently people with money still have faith in the country's future and in the government's continued ability to collect taxes.

CURING HERNIA OR RUPTURE

Not many years ago any physician who injected varicose veins or hemorrhoids—piles—(which are simple varicose veins) instead of removing them by surgical operation was not considered a "regular" member of the medical profession. He was considered simply an "outcast." Today most surgeons and many physicians use this injection method in more than three-quarters of their cases because this proportion of cases appears to be suitable for the injection method. This method does away with surgery, anaesthetic, hospital room, loss of time from work—a real saving in time and money.

It would appear, on the surface at least, that the injection method of treating or curing hernia—rupture as it is usually called—may in a similar manner as the injection of veins take the place of the usual surgical operation.

By the injection method the patient doesn't need to go into hospital or remain home from work, but goes to the physician's office and gets these injections into the region of the "inner ring" of the abdominal muscle. This ring of muscle becomes irritated from these injections and scar or fibrous tissue is formed. This scar or fibrous tissue gradually makes this ring (through which this lump called hernia or rupture comes) so much smaller that the lump can't come out from the abdominal cavity.

These injections are given at intervals and results may be obtained in from two weeks to three months. A properly fitted truss is worn all the time to prevent the hernia coming through during the treatment.

Now this all seems very simple and is simple in some cases but unfortunately it is only successful under certain conditions. Cases that have existed for a number of years, in very obese (fat) individuals, or hernias or ruptures due to operations on the abdomen do not get successful results by the injection method.

In the majority of cases where the rupture has only existed a short time, where the canal (through which the rupture comes out from the abdomen) is narrow, and the individuals are healthy, the results are most successful by this injection method.

Now it must be admitted that even where surgery is used, some ruptures return, and apparently even more return when this injection method is used. The thought then is that as hernias give mental and physical distress the use of this simple injection method may bring relief to many sufferers who fear or are unable to undergo surgical operation.

MURDER TONIGHT

BY LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

Scotland Yard Inspector Hylton from Scotland Yard and Sergeant White are about to begin an inspection of old Arthur Burdett's house at Hope Enderton guided by Burdett's unprepossessing manservant. The occasion for the inspection is the murder of Burdett and the curious fact about the murder is that almost everybody in the village is secretly rather relieved that the old miser has been done in. The house is large but mostly unused, and the atmosphere is eery.

Chapter 10

COLD BLAST

ENDERTON COURT was built in the mid period of Victorian industrialism. 1840 saw the foundations dug, a year and a half later the place was finished. It was a multiplicity of rooms and great lengths of cheerless corridor, which possibly did not matter so much in the days when servants were cheap and plentiful.

Such a place needs life and plenty of it, if it is to be at all bearable, and for half a generation Enderton Court had known little enough life in one corner of it a savage, inward-eating spirit had sat jealously hud died over an occasional spark of begrudged fire, and somewhere in the outer regions a servant or two had passed a cold and comfortless existence; for the rest its big rooms were sheeted and silent.

It looked doubly deserted now as the three men made their way about. Even Inspector Hylton felt a certain eeriness from that damp, deserted mausoleum.

They inspected the ground floor thoroughly.

"Even a house agent would have a job to describe this in glowing terms," was Hylton's comment; "now what about the upstairs?"

"This way, Mister," Lumsdale said briefly, leading the way up the fine wide staircase.

"This is where the old man slept, and my room's three doors along."

Inspection was duly made of two bedrooms, which Hylton privately thought must be as bleak and uninviting as ever any human beings slept in.

"And the other rooms?" he queried.

"All empty. Bits of furniture in some of 'em; old boxes and the like, but for the most part empty."

"Well, we'll poke our heads in," the inspector said cheerily, and they duly poked their heads in to find only too dismal a verification of Lumsdale's account.

"Can't say I altogether blame you for not falling in love with the place," was Hylton's comment.

"THIS part's all right," Lumsdale said. "We can go in the other wing if you've a mind."

"I've a mind to everything," Hylton assured him. "That's my one besetting sin in life—curiosity. Which way?"

"This way, Mister." Lumsdale led them down a long corridor which turned sharply to the right at its end. "This is where all the servants used to sleep when the house was full like, I suppose."

"Anything interesting here?"

"Nothing as I've ever heard of, Mister."

Kingsley Hylton was last out of the third bleak bedroom they visited and for a moment, the Sergeant with the lantern being down the corridor, was virtually in darkness.

"Hallo," he cried sharply, "who's opened a window?"

"Neither of the men ahead seemed to hear him. "Who's opened a window?" he called out more loudly, and there seemed to be a sort of sardonic satisfaction in the voice that floated back, "No windows been opened here for long enough."

It was an assurance that did not satisfy the inspector. "Fetch the lamp back and let's have a look," he ordered, and the three men made a silently thorough inspection of all the windows they could find. All were fastened, many shuttered.

"Why, did you hear something Inspector?" Sergeant White asked.

"No, I didn't hear anything," Hylton answered, "I just wondered." He caught sight for an instant of the grin on Lumsdale's queer face, and not for anything would he have added that for a brief space, ten seconds or more maybe, as he had stood alone in the darkness, he had felt across his cheek a chill, damp blast of air.

"Anything else you want to see?" Lumsdale asked when they regained the hall.

"No, I don't think so. Not at present. When's the inquest, Sergeant?"

"Friday morning, Inspector."

"Um. We shall see what that brings out."

"I can tell you that now, Mister," Lumsdale said, a trifle unexpectedly "Nothing."

A CONSIDERABLE experience of inquests inclined Kingsley Hylton privately to agree with this monosyllabic prophecy, but he did not say so; instead he said,

"Just tell me about that chain on the front door, Lumsdale, I'm not quite clear about that."

"Simple enough. Whenever I went out and old Burdett was alone all the back was shut up and locked, like I've told you. I had to see to that. Then after I'd gone and banged the front door behind me, the old boy put the chain up."

"Was it on when you came back?"

"Last Monday night d'you mean?"

"No, any ordinary night."

"Yes. I'd ring the bell and the old man would come shuffling over the hall with a candle and open the door two or three inches. Then when he saw who it was, he'd let me in, mostly without a word and I'd have to put the chain up again after me."

"Now, last Monday night when you went down to fetch Sergeant White, which way did you go out?"

"Front."

"Was the chain in place or not?"

"No, I noticed that particular."

"Um. I see. Well, I don't think we need worry you any more tonight. We shall be up in the morning of course. Good night."

"Night."

The inspector found the sharp, frosty night air pleasant after the shuttered dampness of Enderton Court. He was cold and wanted exercise: Sergeant White seemed to be of the same mind and they swung along steadily, for the most part in silence.

Once Hylton said, breaking a long silence, "Do you believe in ghosts, Sergeant?"

"Yes sir."

"You do?"

"I've never seen any convincing proof that there aren't any."

"Have you ever seen any convincing proof that two and two make four?"

"Mr. Einstein isn't so sure they do, is he sir?"

Hylton laughed. "Well," he said "I've never heard of a murder committed by a ghost before. What would you say, Sergeant, if it turned out along those lines?"

"It's something I wouldn't care to be mixed up in," James White answered quietly.

Pauker Family Holds Reunion in Kingston

Joseph Pauker of the Kingston Knitting Mills, Inc., Pine Grove avenue, and Mrs. Pauker were hosts, Sunday afternoon at their home, 196 Clifton avenue, to the Pauker Family Society at its regular monthly reunion. After a reception the party motored to Svirsky's Esopus Lake Farm for an outing and dairy dinner.

The re-union was a gala event, marked by speeches at the Svirsky dining hall where Alderman-at-Large John J. Schwenk, representing Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman, who could not attend on account of illness, presented the Paukers with the key to Kingston. Morris Pauker of Kings county, toastmaster, accepted the key.

More than 16 automobiles carried the Paukers from Brooklyn and other points in and around New York city to Kingston, the motorcade arriving about 2:30 p. m. Motorcycle Patrolman Wesley Cramer met the party at the Rondout Creek Bridge and escorted it to the top of West Chestnut street hill for a panoramic view of the Rondout Creek Valley, which was considered a real treat.

In the first car of the motor caravan rode Max L. Reben, a friend of the Paukers and member of the Industrial Committee which brought the Kingston Knitting Mills here more than two years ago. Mr. Reben explained the various scenic views to the visitors, and pointed out in particular the long line of boatyards.

From West Chestnut street, the Paukers were escorted through the city to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pauker, where the reception was held. Then the motor trip was started to Svirsky's for the dinner. Photographs of the great gathering seated at the festive boards were taken by A. H. Lipgar, Kingston photographer.

After the banquet, Joseph Pauker presented his brother, Morris, who introduced the several speakers including Alderman-at-Large Schwenk, Max Reben, all of the Pauker brothers, Joseph Netburn, president of the congregation Agudus Achim and last, but not least, City Judge Nathan Sweidler of Brooklyn, whose short but impressive discourse truly described the reason for the monthly gatherings of the Paukers.

"The Pauker family" said the judge, "is one to be admired greatly for its feeling of friendship toward all men, regardless of race, color or creed. The good will displayed at these gatherings, which I consider it a privilege to attend, is carried out into the world of business by the various members of the Pauker clan and is one of the reasons for its success in industry."

Judge Sweidler, a genial man, who has a rich understanding of life, gained in practice as an attorney and as a magistrate on the bench, was well received and applauded not alone by the Paukers but by the guests at the Svirsky farm, who considered it a privilege to listen to his speech on human kindness.

In presenting the key of Kingston to Morris Pauker, Alderman at Large Schwenk said that in the name of Mayor Heiselman he desired to congratulate the Paukers especially for what they have done in giving work to more than 100 Kingstonians and for the way they conduct their business, free from labor disputes and conditions of dissatisfaction that arise now and then in these trying times.

When he received the key and in response to Mr. Schwenk's remarks, Morris Pauker assured him that it always would be the desire of the Paukers to carry on in Kingston as they have done so far, exercising the principles of kindliness and fairness as taught to them and handed down from their forebears.

Besides being the date of the Pauker monthly re-union, yesterday also was the occasion of the 20th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pauker, who were showered with congratulations.

In his speech Max Reben said he considered it a privilege to say that he is a member of the Industrial Committee that brought the Paukers to Kingston with their knitting mill. "They came here without asking any favors from the city," said Mr. Reben, "and have continued their industry in a manner worthy of great praise. Joseph Pauker, and Mrs. Pauker, too, who spends considerable time at the mill, are beloved by their employes, all of whom are satisfied with the 'one big happy family' method used by the Paukers in the conduct of their factory."

The Pauker family came to Kingston with their knitting mill about two years ago, employing about 50 people then. Since that time the payroll has been built up to 100 and indications are that the plant will continue to grow steadily.

A list of those at the reunion yesterday follows: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pauker of Kingston; Harry Pauker, Sam Pauker, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Pauker, Mr. and Mrs. Ben B. Pauker, Mr. and Mrs. George Pauker, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Pauker, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Weingarten, Mr. and Mrs. David Pauker, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Braunstein, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cohen, Mrs. Yetta Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Pauker, all of New York; Judge Nathan Sweidler of Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. Irving Hallinger of Port Chester; Alderman at Large and Mrs. John J. Schwenk, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Netburn, Mr. and Mrs. Max L. Reben, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Estroff and Mrs. Dorothy Goldberg, mother of Mrs. Joseph Pauker of Kingston; Edward Pauker, Bernard Pauker, Abe Pauker, Anita Pauker, Arnold Pauker, Irving Pauker, Morton Pauker, Carl Pauker and Ferne Pauker, all of New York.

ULSTER PARK

Ulster Park, June 22—The Children's Day exercises, which were held in the brick church Sunday morning, were well attended. The program by the children was well rendered. This marks the closing of the church for the summer vacation. The next service will be held Sunday morning, July 26.

Mrs. Richard C. Gendrevy of Newport News, Va., came on Saturday to spend some time with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. V. Colyer. The trip was made especially at this time in order that she might attend the graduating exercises of Kingston High School on Tuesday night at which time her sister, Miss Mabel R. Story, will be graduated.

Mr. and Mrs. George Tsitsera, Miss Olympia Tsitsera and Mr. Cahill motored to Troy last week-end and attended the graduating exercises at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. Constantine and Michael Tsitsera were among those who were graduated from the institute last Saturday.

Miss Margaret DuMond, a student at Cornell University, is spending the summer vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. DuMond. Miss DuMond has as her guest her roommate, Miss Ruth Greagor.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Eckert and daughter, Gertrude, of Poughkeepsie, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wells.

THERE'S MUSIC IN THE AIR

TALKS TO PARENTS

Pre-School Training

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

By the time a child is five years old and ready to go to kindergarten, the home should have given him training which will make it easier for him to adjust himself to his new environment.

He should be able to dress and undress himself except for the more complicated fastenings, should be able to put on and take off his outdoor clothes, should feed himself with ease, be able to speak intelligibly in connected sentences, to understand and carry out simple orders. He should know his name, address and telephone number, be able to distinguish between his property and that of others, and he should meet other people easily and be content even when his parents are not at hand.

To teach a child these fundamentals is the duty and privilege of the home. Parents who, under the impression that they are showing love for the child, deny him these advantages of training, are really doing the child irremediable wrong. He cannot expect in a busy school to get the attention and care of home, and is likely, moreover, to find that he is the butt of his more accomplished schoolmates.

Most children struggle to be independent and will, as little toddlers, beg to be allowed to dress themselves or wash their hands, or walk without help. Often parents are too busy or too hurried to allow the child to try. They are afraid that he will delay everything by his fumbling attempts. So they hurry him into his clothes with speed and efficiency, keeping up with the schedule.

Far better to delay a meal or break an appointment and give the child his chance to gain his independence early. He will be happier and make greater progress both in school-work and in play from having gained it.

Mrs. Quacko Consents

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"COME out of your hiding, Mrs. Quacko, and explain yourself," cawed Christopher Columbus Crow angrily.

"I was just having some fun, quack, quack," quacked Mrs. Quacko.

"Well, you have worried all of us and you have been behaving in a very odd, unfriendly manner."

"Oh, never that," quacked Mrs. Quacko pitifully. "My friend, Mrs. Fine Duckling, says I am always friendly and considerate and kind."

Now the others were talking to her as she stood by the pond.

"Why is it," Willy Nilly commenced, "that you do not want us to have a party for this new friend of yours and welcome her as a guest to Puddle Muddle?

"No one has met her. The only reason I can think of that you would not let us meet her is because you are ashamed of us—particularly of me. Tell me the truth, Mrs. Quacko. Is that the reason?"

"Oh, no, quack, quack, no," replied Mrs. Quacko shaking her head. "You must never say such a thing as that, Willy Nilly." Tears were in Mrs. Quacko's eyes. She brushed them away with a wing, and said: "I've told Mrs Fine Duckling again and again how wonderful you all are and particularly you, Willy Nilly."

"Then you must let us meet her. We want to know your friend."

"Well, it was only because I didn't want to bother you when you have so much to do, and she is so busy, too."

"Then we'll have the party!" exclaimed Willy Nilly. "You go at once and invite Mrs Fine Duckling." Mrs. Quacko started to go.

CIRCUS ACROBAT DIES AT CONCLUSION OF ACT

Albany, N. Y., June 23 (AP).—While thousands under the circus "Big Top" applauded, Thomas B. Hart, 62, an acrobatic clown, stepped behind a curtain at the conclusion of his act and died in his brother's arms.

Hart and his brother, Everett, were performers with the Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey circus which played here yesterday.

A Washington Daybook

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — Informed sources predict the administration ultimately may revise its reciprocal trade treaty program.

In the dozen or more trade treaties negotiated so far, Secretary of State Hull has agreed to lower tariffs on certain commodities. But it has not been specified that each treaty nation must buy from the United States an amount equal to what it sells to the United States.

The evident premise has been that once trade barriers are removed commerce will perk up and the United States will get an even break. This process would be speeded, because, under "most favored nation" treaties with other countries, tariff cuts granted in one must be granted to the others.

Doubts Appear

MR. HULL'S view has been that stimulation of trade was imperative and that the reciprocal treaties could be used to pry down international barriers without disadvantage to the United States.

But certain trade developments have caused some to speculate whether the secretary of state may not modify his position.

Brazil, with which a reciprocal treaty recently was negotiated, is reported to have agreed with Germany for an exchange of $65,000,000 in trade. To some that seems simply this: That Brazil is prepared to ship her products to the United States under the lowered tariffs but is diverting her own buying power to Germany rather than taking United States goods.

It is argued that if a quota treaty had been signed Brazil would have been obligated to buy a predetermined quantity of American goods in return for the opportunity to sell here.

Triangle Talks

PART of Mr. Hull's theory has been that the treaties would work by "triangular trade." Thus Brazil, for instance, would be permitted to sell here and, with the money, buy from another nation which, in its turn, would buy from the United States. Thus commerce would react to a flip over a wider field.

Now reports are that Australia, which might ordinarily serve as one corner of such a "triangle," has put up tariff and quota barriers against United States goods.

The Brazilian and Australian instances lead to conjecture as to whether Mr. Hull will restrict the "most favored nation" scheme, or perhaps any covenant that any recipropating nation should be prepared to buy a dollar's worth of wheat or cotton from the United States for every dollar's worth of fine wine or coffee the United States buys from the treaty-signing nation.

MILTON

Milton, June 23—At the final meeting of the Board of Education of Common School District No. 1 of Milton on Tuesday evening it was voted to spend part of the $3,000 surplus now in the treasury on a $100 radio for the new Milton grade school. The remainder of the money will be turned back to the Milton taxpayers of that district. After the first of July the Milton district will cease to exist as will all other districts of the town of Marlborough. The Central School Board of Education will at that time take over all affairs of the Central District which will absorb all the old districts when the present Milton school buildings cease to be of service to the district. The voters will then be called upon to decide just how they will dispose of the building. This task will not be necessary, however, until next spring. The members of the board were C. R. Taber, president, Mrs Elsie Hallock, Mrs. Sarah Bailey, Claude Hepworth and J. Harold Clark. Mrs. Adelaide Wilke is the clerk of the board and Francis Kaley treasurer. These members will have no further duties in connection with the old district when the Central District takes over all schools.

Eight Milton young people will get their diplomas from Highland High School this week. They are among the 46 who have graduated. The Milton graduates will be Hazel Baxter, Frances Brown, Roy Conn, Nicholas Dort, Mallhew Jaques, Norma Rhodes, Bernadette Stulb and Robert Wilke. Besides these is Dominic Diorio, whose home is between Milton and Highland.

James Clarke, who graduated recently from Massachusetts State College, is spending two weeks in the Officers' Training Camp at Fort Ethan Allan, Vermont. Mr. Clarke is a commissioned lieutenant-colonel in the R. O. T. C. He majored in Agriculture and on his return from camp will work on his father's farm

Miss Lula E Clarke and Miss Rachel Clarke plan to sail Wednesday, June 24 on the S. S. Stavengersford of the Norwegian American line for Oslo Norway as delegates to the World's Sunday school convention which convenes at Oslow from July 6 to 12. At the close of the convention their itinerary will take them to North Cape, Swenden, Denmark, Scotland and England, returning to America about August 30.

The rain of the last two days has done considerable damage to fruit and to fruit prices in the New York city markets. Raspberries especially have shown the effects of the rain. Fruit going into New York has been wet and soggy and as a result has molded readily. Due to rain there has not been many trucks carrying fruit into the city markets.

The Central School District Board of Education formally adopted all but two sections of a 1936-1937 school budget for presentation to the district on July 7, at a special board meeting Tuesday evening. The two remaining sections those on transportation and furniture and equipment cannot be completed nor adopted until bids have been presented and other official figures determined. The boards regular June meeting night would be Tuesday but since that is high school commencement night the meeting has been postponed until Thursday evening At this meeting bids will be received from bus lines and taxi men for transportation of school children.

Twenty-five Milton veterans called at the Milton post office Monday, June 15, for their bonus bonds. Some of those were from Milton village and others from rural routes.

Mr. and Mrs. James Scott gave a tea and reception Saturday for Mrs. Santi of Italy, mother of Emanuel Santi, noted violinist. The reception was held in the Scott home. Mrs. Santi and husband run a large Methodist orphan's home in Italy. She gave a talk on their work with the children. She speaks excellent English and is an interesting speaker. Following the talk Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Santi played for their guests.

Miss Theodora Vail of Arlington has been a recent guest of Mrs. Adelaide Wilke.

Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Warren were recent visitors in Ithaca and attended commencement exercises at Cornell University.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Ernest and Mrs. Kenneth Taber were dinner guests of Mrs. Adelaide Wilke Wednesday.

Shipments of sweet and sour cherries were leading the fruit movement the past week throughout the mid-Hudson fruit belt as hundreds of growers are picking. The market in New York has been ranging around 90c up to $1.00 for best quality sour cherries packed in twelve-quart baskets the past few days. Rains the past few weeks have caused the fruit to crack in many cases. Some of the larger Milton growers rote this particularly.

Local fruit growers, who go in for strawberries, have had every reason to congratulate themselves this year for they have been receiving some of the best prices in almost a decade. A shortage of Maryland and South Jersey berries as a result of a drouth in these states has resulted in a good demand for our fruit in New York and unusually good prices for quality fruit and as a rule most of the berries have been of very good quality. For awhile some of them had begun to suffer from the dry weather but timely rains helped bring them up to size. Berries gathered the forepart of the season were of uniformly good quality for they had not been stunted by the lack of rain to any extent.

The Girl Scouts held a picnic at Peterskills Falls at Minnewaska, with their leader, Miss Minna Strohman, last week.

Children's Day was observed at the Milton Presbyterian Church, Sunday morning and was considered a beautiful service. The Rev. R. H. Northrop, pastor of the Methodist Church, gave a very interesting talk to the children. The Rev. Edith Dewey, former pastor of Milton M. E. Church, offered the opening prayer. The following program was rendered; Organ Voluntary, Mrs. Oliver Kent; Call to Worship; Song Welcome, Gloria Clarke; Prayer Responsive Reading; Primary Class; Song, Jesus Is Our Friend; Song, The Shepherd Calls; Song of Solomon, Sally Clarke; Garden Exercise, James Kent, Justine Brewster, Carol Clarke and Carlton Brewster; Recitation, Daddies, John Bell; Recitation, Dorothy Neverless; Recitation, Edith Clarke; Recitation, Ruth Smith, Mrs Wilke's class song, Shepherd Kind and True; Talk by Mrs. Young, Sunday School Missions; Address, the Rev. R. H. Northrop, Song, The Summer Days Are Coming, Mrs. Taber's Class; Recitation, A Good Shepherd, Francis Clarke; Solo, Be Still and Know, Helen Kent; Missionary Dramatization, The Piper and the Map Offering; Class Song, Mrs. DuBois' Class, Come Unto Me; Song by School, Tell It Over and Over Again, Singing, Saviour Like a Shepherd Lead Us, Congregation; Benediction, the Rev. The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Church will meet Friday afternoon, June 26, at the home of Mrs. Ruby Lais and Miss Mary Taber.

Mrs. Frank Gilbert and daughter, Shirley, and son, Martin, are visiting in New York.

According to the New York Times' Washington correspondent, the Republicans this year are not telling the Democrats to "move out" but to "move over."

FARLEY REPLIES TO SMITH ATTACK

Alfred E. Smith's eleventh-hour demand that the Democratic national convention repudiate President Roosevelt brought forth a statement by Chairman James Farley of the Democratic national committee that "this convention will nominate a genuine Democrat, Franklin D. Roosevelt." Charles Michelson (indicated by arrow), publicity director, listened attentively as Farley spoke to newspapermen. (Associated Press Photo)

CONGRESS ADJOURNS QUIETLY

Out of respect to the late Speaker Byrns, the adjournment of congress was more quiet than usual, but crowds jammed capitol corridors to greet representatives as they left the chamber at the session's close. Here is a typical scene. (Associated Press Photo)

Smoke House Poetry

Let those who on their downy couch
Lie gently down to rest,
And never feel the frightful pangs
Of profanity suppressed.

Those pious souls who calmly sleep
And never cuss at all,
But in God's peace serenely wait
The sweet restorer's call.

Have charity for one who wakes
And feebly cries for beer;
As on his stricken ear there falls
A message from the air.

A few preliminary howls announce
The singer and the song,
Incense the sleeper's savage breast;
And do him fearful wrong.

We once expressed a sinful doubt
But now believe it's so,
That the prophet with his horn upset
The gates of Jericho

Could we but find some vale remote
For meditation sweet,
Then on the bone of our adversity
Would remain a little meat.

Graduation Program Of Stone Ridge School

Stone Ridge, June 22—The pupils of Stone Ridge School held their first commencement exercises at the Grange Hall on Friday evening at 8:15 o'clock. The seats were filled before eight o'clock and extra chairs were brought in from upstairs.

The pupils marched downstairs and up the aisles to the front of the room and sang America and the Star Spangled Banner with Miss Alberta Davis at the piano.

Miss Mildred Roosa, teacher of the graduation class, greeted the people and said she was almost overcome to see such a large audience at the first graduation exercise the school had ever had and she was also delighted that the entire eighth grade passed.

A piano solo, "Walse Bleue", was rendered by Zella M Sahler, after which the curtain opened to a stage very artistically decorated with evergreens in the background of a white picket fence and archway decorated with hollyhocks and roses.

The primary class, dressed as gardeners, gave a very beautiful play, "Little Gardeners", in which Harry Barnhardt dressed in green acted the part of a hop-toad in a very amusing manner.

A drill, "Roses Fair", was very efficiently given by the fifth, sixth and seventh grades.

The remainder of the program was given by the members of the graduating class of which Margaret Oakley was president.

The program read by Virgil Wagar was as follows:

Salutatory address by Zella Sahler

Class will by Doris Pine

Class poet by George Silkworth.

Class Prophecy by Margery Larsen.

Class statistics by Dorothy North

Valedictorian speech by Margaret Oakley.

The challenge to the graduates was very effectively given by the Rev Roscoe S Strivings, pastor of Stone Ridge M. E. Church. Mr. Strivings said he was thrilled to speak to this graduation class as it was his first opportunity to speak to a graduating class of which his son was a member. He defined commencement as finishing a task of which we are proud and unfolding into a bigger job. Mr. Strivings hoped their aim would be to get a good education as only two per cent of American youth graduate from college. He wished to leave with them a few lessons: A proper relationship with those older and to respect authority and age. Be eager to do even better than their fathers have done. Remember a job is good only in proportion to what it costs. Jobs with bargain price are no bargain. Everyone put forth every effort to make the best of his opportunities. Learn to dream great dreams, such as that of Thomas Edison, who gave the world a glow of electric lights, dreams which will make the world a greater and better world to live in. Practice the presence of God as a real consciousness of the presence of God so that whatever they take up they may have the abiding presence of God to go with them through life. To aspire to do their very best with their lives and use all available agencies of society to prepare for their life's task.

Doris Pine presented Miss Roosa with a basket of beautiful flowers as a token of appreciation of her kind and faithful service to the graduation class.

Ilean Peters presented Miss Davis with a similar basket of flowers from the primary room.

Miss Davis responded with a deep appreciation and wishing her pupils a happy vacation.

Miss Roosa thanked the graduating class and expressed heartfelt and sincere regret in parting with them as it had been a great pleasure to her to work with such a fine group of pupils who had worked so cooperatively with her.

Mrs. Fred Brown presented the graduating class with a gift of fine pencils from the Mothers' Club.

Helen Van De Mark, Edna Sutherland, Francis Barnhardt and Edward Beatty each received a gift from the Mother's Club for perfect attendance during the school year.

Bouquets of flowers from friends were received by Doris Pine, George Silkworth and Margaret Oakley.

Before the program Miss Davis presented the pupils of the graduating class with beautiful corsages which they wore during the program.

Books add a decorative note to any room, but dirt and dust has ruined many a volume. One housewife had open shelves in her living room, but found that her books were looking shabby. She had decorative panels made in the form of doors which could be removed at any time.

GARDEN PESTS KILLED WITH NEW SPRAY.

Insect pests must be reckoned with no matter what the size or extent of your garden. For small gardens and those to whom gardening is a "side line" of pure delight, a new insecticide (insect killer) is available which has none of the dangerous hazards of mixing and storing such poisonous preparations as the arsenicals, fluoridce and nicotine compounds. This insecticide is known by the trade name Dwin. It is doubly useful because it may also be used in the home to kill flies, fleas, ants, moths, etc. It's the pyrethrum content of this insecticide which does the work and no mixing, preparing or changing in any way is required, according to Baldwin Laboratories, Inc., Saegertown, Pa., manufacturers of Dwin, who state that so far as they know no other insecticide on the market today possesses the quality of being adaptable to use in both home and garden.

A breathing spell for pastures pays good dividends in more forage and better gains in weight of cattle, according to tests by the Bureau of Animal Industry at the Ardmore field station, Ardmore, S. Dak.

TIPS ON CONTRACT

By TOM O'NEIL

Smothered

If a declarer can capture trumps by finesse but by so doing loses power to ruff losers, is there anything he can do to make his contract?

At times there is. He may be able to handle the situation so that a defender must ruff only to be over-ruffed.

An illustration of this comes from Miss Willie Morris, radio soprano:

NORTH
♥K 10 4
♦8 7 6 4
♣A Q J 4

WEST
♠K Q J 7 6 5 4 3 2
♥Q J 8
♦NONE

EAST
♠A 10
♥7 5 2
♦K 5 3 2
♣9 8 5 2

DEALER

SOUTH
♠NONE
♥A 9 6 3
♦A Q J 10 9
♣K 10 7 3

Miss Morris held the South cards and bid one diamond. West soared to four spades. With his fit in diamonds and honors in hearts and clubs, North went to five diamonds. East passed and South bid six diamonds, the contract.

West opened the spade king, which was covered by East's ace for the purpose of unblocking the suit if need be. South ruffed and stopped to consider the situation.

If the king of diamonds were East, it could be captured, since there were enough entries in the North hand to keep finessing. If the finesse should work the declarer could win five diamond tricks, four clubs and two hearts, a total of eleven. Whence the twelfth trick? If the adverse trumps were evenly divided there would be no difficulty.

But West's preemptive overcall indicates a handful of spades and little else. The chances were that in the ruffing of spades the long trump hand would be forced so that the declarer could not also ruff a heart North and at the same time capture the trump king.

Such proved to be the situation when the opening spade lead was trumped South and the declarer led to the jack of clubs, took a successful diamond finesse and found West void of trumps.

The solution of the problem was elimination from the East hand of everything but trumps. Miss Morris played on the assumption that the defenders' card would permit that elimination.

A club was led to the Queen North. The last spade was led from the North hand and trumped South. A club was led to North's ace and another diamond finesse was taken, leaving but the singleton ace of trumps South. The king of clubs was played, then a low heart. West had to split honors. The king of hearts took the trick and a low heart from North was won by South's ace. The situation then was:

NORTH
H—10
D—8 7

WEST
S—Q J
H—Q

EAST
H—7.
D—K 5

SOUTH
H—9 6
D—A

A heart, led by South, was won necessarily by West, who had nothing to return but a spade, which had to be trumped North. If East played the trump king, South would win with the ace and trump a heart North, East having to under-ruff.

Americanism Event Scheduled for July 2 Is Canceled by Group

The proposed Americanism program for Thursday evening, July 2, at the Municipal Auditorium, was called off Monday night at a meeting in the Elks' Club where the committee representing that organization followed the action taken by Kingston Post, American Legion, which voted against the program last Friday.

At its regular meeting, the Legion voted against participating in the Americanism program because Attorney General John J. Bennett, past state commander of the Legion, had been asked to be one of the principal speakers, and as he is a potential candidate for governor next fall, the Legionnaires feared the public might think they were playing politics.

Last night the group representing the Elks decided to abandon promotion of the Americanism program, too, reversing the decision it made last week that the event on July 2 would go on regardless of whatever action the Legion might take on the proposition at its post meeting. The Legion committee that met with the Elks was not empowered to go ahead with plans until the post had acted.

The Americanism program was proposed by the Legion, it was said at last week's meeting, and the Elks were invited to collaborate. Herman I. DuBois, one of the Elks' committee, and a past commander of Kingston Post, American Legion, contacted the attorney general and invited him to be one of the speakers. When he announced this at last Wednesday's meeting of the joint committee, the Legionnaires said they would need the consent of the post, expressed by a vote, in order to continue on with the program. The ex-servicemen voted against going ahead, a spokesman giving the reason that the organization did not wish to impress the public that it was mixing in politics.

Intimacy of Years Is Climaxed by Aid Of Lehman at Parley

New York, June 23 (AP).—The decision of Gov. Herbert H. Lehman to support Franklin D. Roosevelt—at the expense of parting political company with Alfred E. Smith—is the climax of an association of careers of a decade and more, most of that time in close friendship.

It was an association that took both Roosevelt and Lehman to Albany, successors to Smith as governor.

In 1924, Smith—then governor—sought someone to handle his national campaign for the presidential nomination, and at his insistence, Roosevelt became the manager of the pre-convention campaign, placing Smith's name in nomination.

It was in that convention, in New York's Madison Square Garden, that Roosevelt characterized Smith as "The Happy Warrior."

While not prominently identified in political affairs then, Lehman supported Smith steadily and was frequently called on, in Smith's ensuing terms as governor, for advice upon industrial and financial questions.

Both Lehman and Roosevelt jumped into activity again in 1928 for Smith. Roosevelt nominated "The Happy Warrior" at Houston and campaigned for him; while Lehman was chairman of the finance group of the Democratic national committee in the '28 campaign.

Seeking to bolster the ticket for New York state, Smith prevailed upon Roosevelt to make the race for governor in 1928. After days of hesitancy, Roosevelt agreed and both induced Lehman—who had little desire to enter public life—to run as the nominee for lieutenant-governor.

Smith lost New York to Herbert Hoover in the 1928 presidential election; but the state ticket of Roosevelt and Lehman swept to victory.

In the following four years, with friction apparent now and then between Roosevelt and Smith, Lehman was generally credited with being the "peace-maker" between them.

In the 1932 pre-convention fight between Smith and Roosevelt, Lehman maintained a neutral position between his close friends; but after the Chicago convention nominated Roosevelt, Lehman used his efforts to bring them together.

At the Albany state convention in 1932, Roosevelt and Smith found their last opportunity for standing together—they fought side by side for the nomination of Lehman as the candidate for governor.

After the inauguration of Roosevelt as President, the close political and personal association between him and Lehman continued; and, from outward appearances, there was no sign of any lessening of the personal friendship between Lehman and Smith.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By CLAUDE E. JAGGER

New York, June 23 (AP)—Firmness of industrial specialties partly offset profit taking in today's stock market.

Traders began to cash in following a firm opening in which a number of issues bounded to new peak levels for the past several years.

The activity dwindled appreciably on the selling and, near the final hour, morning losses had been pared or cancelled in many instances. Wilson & Co., and other packing shares rallied when the former declared the regular dividend on the common.

The late tone was irregular. Transfers approximated 950,000 shares.

Steady to higher were Douglas Aircraft, U. S. Rubber, Goodyear, International Nickel, Allied Chemical, Motor Products, Commercial Investment Trust, Seaboard Oil, Texas Corp., Sears Roebuck, National Steel, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, United Aircraft and Kennecott.

J. I. Case dropped about 3. The rails were soft. Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Union Pacific, Great Northern and Northern Pacific were in supply. Chrysler recorded a new 6-year top before meeting resistance and reversing itself. Other losers up to a point or so included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Union Carbide, Westinghouse, Owens-Illinois, Montgomery Ward, Woolworth, American Telephone, Western Union, North American and American Water Works.

Group Players at New Barn Theatre in Week

A company of the Group Players is scheduled to arrive from New York, Sunday afternoon to begin its first week at the New Barn Theatre on the Schoentag estate, near Saugerties, in the successful comedy, "Three Men on a Horse".

The Group Players, who are not to be confused with the usual sort of short-lived Little Theatre movements, is an organization of actors, stage hands, musicians and others. They started some 12 years ago under the name of the Avon Players, but after two years obtained a state charter under their present name.

At the present time there are several companies of Group Players, all of them appearing in plays and comedies. Three are in Maine at present, two in New Hampshire, three in New Jersey and two others in New York state. The company that will appear at New Barn Theatre next week will not be seen here again for several weeks. The players who will be seen here week after next in "Warrior's Husband" are now playing to good audiences in Plainfield, N. J. This play is the one that brought fame to Katherine Hepburn.

Many well-known stage and screen stars were formerly members of the Group Players. Among them are Pat O'Brien, Bette Davis, Donald Meek and scores of others.

Roosevelt Studies Bills Before Him

Washington, June 23 (AP)—After convention eve parleys with groups of political leaders, President Roosevelt gave further attention today to bills awaiting his approval amid forecasts of quick action on the new tax measure.

Signing of the deficiency bill carrying $1,425,000,000 for relief, and the omnibus flood control measure authorizing a $320,000,000 program in 40 states cut further yesterday into the pile of bills awaiting White House action.

Action on the relief item assured continued federal jobs for 2,300,000 persons listed as unemployed on relief or certified as "in need of relief."

The $2,375,397,537 deficiency bill also carries $548,631,860 for the social security program and $308,000,000 for emergency conservation.

Local Death Record

For many years he had been employed in the Saugerties mills. He had been an active member of the Baptist Church there having been choir director and also served in other departments of the church work. He was also a member of the Pythian Order. After the failure of the mills a number of years ago Mr. Crum went to Cairo and made his home with relatives. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Eleanor Gleason, of Jersey City, and a number of nieces and nephews, those residing here being Mrs. Joseph Sweeney, Sr., Edward Ball, Thomas Ball and Charles Crum. Miss Jacobs Wins Wimbledon Match

Wimbledon, Eng., June 23 (AP)—Helen Jacobs, United States champion and runner-up at Wimbledon last year, dropped only one game as she defeated Miss M. Cable, little known British player, in the first round of the all-England tennis championships today. The scores were 6-1, 6-0.

Miss Jacobs, who had been playing far below her form since taking ill in Vienna last month, looked invincible as she opened a bid for the title she has never held. Last year she was beaten by Helen Wills Moody in the finals.

Mrs. Dorothy Andrus of New York, and Stamford, Conn., also won her first round match, defeating Miss Gethin-Harry of England, 6-4, 8-6.

Renews Criticism

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., June 23 (AP)—Governor Lehman renewed today his criticism of the Legislature for failure to pass his social security program. In a message to the state conference of health officers and public health nurses here, the governor asserted that as a result it would be "difficult, if not impossible", to carry out the state health department's plans for "the training of personnel in our larger cities." "Whether plans under existing statute can be formulated which will enable the state to use any of the moneys that have been allotted by the federal government for use in cities is a matter of serious doubt," the governor's message, read by State Health Commissioner Edward S. Godfrey, Jr., continued.

One of the prettiest of June weddings took place on Sunday, June 21, at St. Peter's Church, when Miss Margaret Mary Carro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Carro, became the bride of Frank Vigna, son of Alexander Vigna and the late Rose Sisco Vigna. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was beautiful in a gown of white satin with a long train. Her veil was of tulle and rose point lace caught with orange blossoms and pearls, with a halo style cap of seed pearls. She carried an arm bouquet of bride's roses. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Catherine Carro, who was gowned in pale blue mousline de soie, with hat and slippers to match. She carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. John Vigna acted as best man for his brother. Immediately following the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. John P. Neuman, pastor of St. Peter's, a reception was held at Fireman's Hall, Glasco, with music by Vince Edward and his Harmony Kings. A buffet luncheon was served at 5 o'clock. Diedolf-Deitz

A host of friends and relatives gathered at the Little Reformed church in Cottekill Sunday, June 21, at 4 p. m. to witness the charming wedding of Miss Lela M. Deitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Deitz of Binnewater and Oscar P. Diedolf, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Diedolf of Bloomington. The bride was given in marriage by her father and was attended by her sister, Mary LoBello, matron of honor. The best man was Peter J. LoBello, a childhood friend of the groom. The bride's ring has a very sweet sentiment, it being the wedding ring of the groom's grandfather, its age being at least 75 years. The bride was charming in a white taffeta gown and carried talisman roses and swansonia. The matron of honor wore a peach taffeta gown and carried Ophelia roses and blue delphinium. The groom and his best man wore oxford grey coats and white flannel trousers. The wedding march by Mendelssohn was played by Mrs. Harvey Hoffman, wife of the officiating minister of the Mt. Marion church. After the ceremony the happy couple received the best wishes of their many friends at the altar and left the church in a shower of rice and confetti. Outside the church many pictures were taken. After a ride through the neighboring town the bridal party returned to the home of the bride where a reception was held for her most intimate friends and relatives. At 7 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Diedolf left for a motor trip through northern New York. They will be at home to their many friends in their summer cottage at Fourth Binnewater Lake after June 29.

Staudt-Garrity

On Sunday afternoon, June 21, at 2:45 o'clock, St. Joseph's Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding when Angelus M. Garrity, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel T. Garrity, and Joseph Russell Staudt, son of Mrs. Anna Staudt of this city, were united in marriage by the Rev. Edmund Burke. As the bridal party entered the church, Mrs. Frank Rafferty, organist, assisted by Jacob Mollott, violinist, rendered the wedding march from Lohengrin and appropriate selections throughout the ceremony. During the ceremony William Raible sang very beautifully, "I love you truly." The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, was gowned in white satin princess style dress, with veil caught with orange blossoms. She carried a bridal bouquet of white roses. The maid of honor, Ruth Garrity, sister of the bride, was gowned in shell pink taffeta with pale blue accessories. Her bouquet was of pink sweetheart roses. The bridesmaids were sisters of the bride; Goldie Garrity wore a gown of pale blue mousseline-de-soie over taffeta, with pink accessories and Lorraine Garrity wore a gown of yellow mousseline-de-soie over taffeta, with brown accessories. Their bouquets were of talisman roses. The best man was Edward Staudt, brother of the groom. The ushers were Paul Phelan and Kenneth W. Soper of this city. At the conclusion of the church ceremony a reception was held at the Kirkland Hotel for the immediate relatives of bride and groom, after which Mr. and Mrs. Staudt left by motor for Quebec, Canada, and other points of interest. Upon their return they will reside at 215 Downs street where a newly furnished home awaits them. Both are popularly known and have the well wishes of a host of friends in this city.

The Rev. Father Fant, pastor of St. Colman's Church, opened the exercises with prayer. He was followed by Michael Guida who had been chosen as Salutatorian of his class. He welcomed those present and expressed his appreciation to all those who had made this graduation possible. He thanked the parents for their part, the board of trustees, the Parent-Teacher Association and the teachers for their cooperation and assistance during the past year.

Nan O'Bryan, the class valedictorian, spoke about books, their value and influence. She urged her listeners to make use of the many books now easily available at public libraries. Lehman Confers With Wagner Today On Platform Issues

Philadelphia, June 23 (AP)—Governor Lehman of New York conferred today with Senator Robert F. Wagner (D., N. Y.) on "several details" of the platform to be presented to the Democratic National Convention, but neither disclosed the subjects discussed.

It was believed likely, however, that the governor gave to the New York senator, entrusted by President Roosevelt to draft the party's declarations, his views on the right of states and the federal government to enact laws relating to wages and maximum hours of labor.

Wagner was known to be anxious to learn Mr. Lehman's views on a possible proposal for a constitutional change to allow states to fix wages and maximum hours, agitation for which was precipitated by the Supreme Court's recent invalidation of the New York minimum wage law enacted under the governor's sponsorship.

The governor said he believed the law "one of the most sound and humane measures ever enacted, not only for my own state but for any state."

The governor is regarded as a member of the camp seeking an amendment to the Constitution to allow state or federal laws on wages and hours, provided the subject cannot be handled under present interpretation of law.

Observers here interpreted the governor's interest in the platform as a likely sign he will be the spearhead of the New Deal's fall campaign in the industrial east, regardless of whether he runs for a third term.

Wagner, after the conference, expressed the hope that the governor would run again.

Reports were current throughout hotel corridors that the convention might be called upon to adopt a resolution urging Governor Lehman to seek a third term in the name of party loyalty.

Many of the state delegates expressed belief, however, that leaders would not push the plan, preferring to depend upon present draft movements to persuade the governor to change his decision not to run again.

Leaders predicted all of New York's 94 votes would be cast for President Roosevelt in defiance of Alfred E. Smith's bolt.

FEAST FOR THE CURIOUS

Strange Sea Creature Washed up on Florida Beach

Sebastian, Fla., June 23 (AP)—Hundreds of curious visitors could shed no light today on the identity of a strange sea creature washed ashore here.

The body is about 15 feet long, the head bears a rough resemblance to that of a camel while the leathery hide is covered with coarse, matted hair.

The carcass was discovered several days ago by a boy and the remains now are almost buried by tide-washed sand.

Democrats Open Convention Today

gavel. The blows could be heard to the far ends of the floor.

Big-Wigs Arrive

The group of convention big-wigs reached the hall soon after noon but showed no disposition to start the show. Only a handful of spectators filled the steeply pitched galleries, scattered here and there in couples. There was a similar fractional showing of delegates and alternates on the floor.

From its lofty perch against the roof at the back of the hall, a big band roared along its brassy tones, filling the cavernous hall with the half muffled speaker system aiding. It made conversation on the floor a matter of almost shouting, mouth to ear.

Another big band, flaming in red coats, marched into the back of the hall and went parading about the aisles behind the huge blue and gold banner bearing of the Pennsylvania delegation.

Alabama hit the first Roosevelt demonstration note. A huge four-sided sign, like an old-fashioned election transparency, read:

"Alabama, the first state for Roosevelt."

Down in the Connecticut delegation, the shiny dome of Attorney General L Homer S Cummings glittered in the flare of flash bulbs as he stood to be photographed.

As the organ played on Senator Maloney of Connecticut, came in wearing the badge of an assistant sergeant-at-arms. He complained his group chairman had lost all tickets for the delegation.

"We had to see Gene Tunney to get us in," said Maloney.

Senator Glass, a rank and file delegate for the first time in 40 years, walked into the hall alone and took a seat squarely under the Virginia standard, where he held an impromptu reception

Alice Roosevelt Longworth, here to write for the newspapers, came drifting past the speaker's platform, decorated with a green ribboned "active press" badge. She greeted many friends

Behind another booming red-clad band blaring "California Here I Come," Senator William G. McAdoo led the California delegation to its place

Farley finally rapped for order at 1.01 p. m. eastern daylight time. The invocation was pronounced by the Right Rev. Hugh L. Lamb, auxiliary bishop, of the Catholic archdiocese of Philadelphia.

His silken, red cap gleaming atop his head, the bishop prayed for ideals "to make America the land of justice and freedom."

Then Farley had the convention stand for a minute "in solemn tribute to a great American, Will Rogers." Many in the jammed hall stood with lowered head.

Mayor S. Davis Wilson welcomed the convention to Philadelphia A Republican, Wilson said "politics was adjourned" and invited all to make themselves at home.

New York is Firm

Philadelphia, June 23 (AP)—New York's delegates stood fast for President Roosevelt and the New Deal in defiance of Alfred E. Smith's bolt as the Democratic national convention opened today.

At the same time they watched a fast expanding movement to draft Governor Lehman for a third term.

Delegation leaders predicted all of the 94 votes of the President's home state would be cast for Mr. Roosevelt, despite former Governor Smith's appeal to "put aside Roosevelt" and elect a "genuine Democrat."

Bert S. Stand, secretary of Tammany Hall, will take Smith's seat as an alternate delegate from the 11th congressional district, and Joab H. Banton of New York city will vote in the place of U. S. Senator Royal S. Copeland, who decided to attend a Cleveland medical meeting instead of the convention. Both Stand and Banton, it is understood, will support Roosevelt.

The New York delegates, in general, endorsed Governor Lehman's denunciation of Smith's appeal for a repudiation of the President — the first time he openly had supported either Smith or Mr. Roosevelt in their repeated political clashes.

Lehman was instrumental in bringing together Smith and the President after they split at the Chicago convention in 1932.

Predictions that the President would carry New York again this fall echoed throughout the state headquarters as the delegates agreed with Lehman's statement that Roosevelt would win by a substantial majority regardless of who heads the state ticket.

Governor Still Silent

But the governor was still silent as to whether he would yield to the pressure being exerted to have him rescind his decision not to seek the third term.

He smilingly admitted he has received "thousands of letters" urging him to run again, but merely repeated "no comment" when asked if he thought he might change his mind.

Today, between convention sessions, the governor began preparation of the speech he is to give seconding President Roosevelt. He will be chosen chairman of the state delegation at a caucus late today.

Additional prominent party leaders expressed the belief that the governor would waver in his decision not to run again.

Secretary of State Edward J. Flynn told interviewers he was convinced the governor would run again, and Mayor Charles Stanton of Rochester, said the governor is a "sure winner, he should run."

The organized draft drive moved apace as Maurice P. Davidson, former Fusion party leader in New York city and head of the state-wide citizens' committee for Lehman, announced that committees already are being organized in 24 counties to spur the movement.

Among them he listed Dutchess, Nassau, Niagara, Oneida, Onondaga, Ontario, Putnam, and Westchester.

Among the prominent Democrats whom Davidson said are enrolled in the movement are Mayor G. W. L. Smith, Pittsfield, Captain John B. Judson, executive officer of the state liquor authority; Prof. Charles D. Burdick, Ithaca; and Henry Morgenthau, Sr., of White Plains, former ambassador to Turkey and father of Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau.

Besides selecting Governor Lehman as chairman of the state delegation, the caucus will elect a national committeeman, national committeewoman and members of important convention committees.

Secretary of State Flynn, present national committeeman, is said to be eager to retire. Mrs. Alice H Good of New York city is expected to be named national committeewoman without opposition.

G. O. P. Beckons Smith

New York, June 23 (AP)—The Republican party beckoned welcomingly today to Alfred E. Smith and other Democrats who join him in opposing the New Deal.

John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman and campaign manager for Governor Alf M. Landon, the Republican presidential candidate, issued last night what was tantamount to an invitation to them to line up with the Kansan's forces.

Speaking in Smith's home city, Hamilton said Republicans would "honor" him and four colleagues who have demanded that President Roosevelt be set aside for another candidate at Philadelphia.

The five, Hamilton said, "apparently made the choice between party and country as millions of others will do."

His speech as originally prepared contained no reference to Smith and the co-signers of the anti-Roosevelt manifesto—former Governor Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts, former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, former Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby and former State Supreme Court Justice Daniel Cohalan.

What caused the text of the speech to be changed was not disclosed. He inserted this statement:

"In the words of Governor Landon, spoken today at Topeka, 'the line of demarcation between fealty to party and loyalty to country is something for each citizen to determine for himself.'

"At least five distinguished and determined citizens led by a man who has rendered a distinguished service to your city and your state apparently made the choice between party and country as millions of others will do before the general election in November; and tonight—as Republicans—we honor them for the high ideals that have prompted this action on their part."

This wholly unexpected appeal led to fresh speculation as to whether Smith will, indeed, take his famous "walk", and if so whether he will walk to the Republican camp.

Only yesterday, he declined to comment in answer to inquiries whether he would make speeches for Landon.

Wagner Confers With Wallace On Platform

for president, challenging the Democratic party to protect the civil liberties and economic interests of the share-croppers of Arkansas.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People petitioned the convention today in behalf of a plank favoring federal anti-lynching legislation. Wagner has been the joint author of such legislation in Congress.

As Wagner talked with Wallace, word came from his room that he did not bring from the White House a complete platform draft, but had left some planks to be completed in negotiations here.

The New York senator had planned to come to Philadelphia last Friday. Many times after his trip was postponed he was reported conferring with the President. Expectant platform makers here disclaimed meanwhile any knowledge of what changes, if any, were being made in the platform.

Labor Monopoly

Speculation has centered on possible changes in the labor monopoly, and constitutional planks. There has been talk of a last minute change to include a constitutional amendment plank, but it has been discounted by informed leaders.

Whatever the White House suggestions turn out to be, they were almost assured a friendly reception by the make-up of the platform committee.

A committee made up largely of the Senators who have steered the New Deal program through Congress was being formed to pass on the platform. Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, who might have caused a struggle, had announced he was "too worn out" to serve on the committee on which he has worked at every convention since 1896. He intimated also that his suggestions may have been turned down already.

No Views of Glass

Asked if the platform contained any of his views, the Virginian replied with an emphatic "No."

This lent weight to the belief in some quarters that the platform would make few concessions to the "conservative" wing of the party, but would be designed to hold the "liberals" in line.

The make-up of the platform committee also added strength to this view. Among the Senators already chosen to serve were such New Deal supporters as Byrnes of South Carolina, Wheeler of Montana, Thomas of Oklahoma, Murphy of Iowa, O'Mahoney of Wyoming; Black of Alabama, and Pope of Idaho, as well as Wagner.

Other Senators on the committee included George of Georgia; and Bailey of North Carolina, who have been more critically inclined.

Several labor union spokesmen wanted a declaration for a constitutional amendment to permit minimum wage legislation for women, a shorter work week, and a requirement that a two-thirds vote of the supreme court would be necessary to invalidate legislation.

Some farm organizations were asking for crop control and a variety of other agricultural aids in addition to managed currency.

Hamilton Invites Al Smith to Speak In Behalf of Landon

New York, June 22 (AP).—Chairman John D. M. Hamilton, of the Republican national committee, today virtually invited former Governor Alfred E. Smith to speak in the campaign in behalf of Governor Alf M. Landon.

In response to the direct question as to whether Smith would speak for Landon, Hamilton replied:

"I think Governor Smith is one of the finest Americans and the people of the country are entitled to hear his views."

Asked whether his statement did not contain an inference that he wanted the former governor to "take the stump" in behalf of the Republican ticket, Hamilton replied

"It isn't even an inference"—adding that he would be "tickled to death."

To a question whether he believed Smith should be given a place in the cabinet, provided he aided Mr. Landon and the Kansan won, Hamilton replied:

"That's beyond my depth. That would be a matter up to Governor Landon."

Commenting on a statement by Postmaster General Farley that Smith could have the convention floor as a delegate, Hamilton said:

"I don't know why Smith should want to go into that (convention) setup, 64 per cent of which is dominated by federal office-holders."

He said he had not seen Smith on this trip to New York, but quickly added that should not be interpreted as "closing the door" to a future meeting.

Hamilton lashed out again at Farley, accusing the latter of ordering Democrats to hold "large gatherings" when President Roosevelt accepts his renomination.

Hamilton, while saying emphatically the Landon forces had given no support, financial or otherwise, to the William Lemke third party movement, added with a grin, "on the other hand such a movement is quite all right with us."

He predicted the Lemke candidacy would "cost Roosevelt from six to nine votes for every one it costs us," saying that in the Mississippi valley and elsewhere the "sound" farmers, laborers and business man would vote the Landon ticket, the others splitting between Roosevelt and Lemke.

Marler is Appointed.

Ottawa, June 23 (AP)—The appointment of Sir Herbert Marler, Canadian minister to Japan, as minister to the United States was announced in the House of Commons today by Prime Minister Mackenzie King. The new minister to Washington succeeds William Duncan Herridge.

Curley Will Accept.

Boston, June 23 (AP)—Governor James M Curley said, in an interview today, he would accept the Democratic nomination for vice president if it is offered him. Curley is now a candidate for United States Senator.

Ex-Service Men Heed Rabin's Advice of "Hold On To Your Bonus Bonds!"

Rabin's Credit Clothing Store at 45 North Front St., was the center of bubbling activity. All day long Ex-Service Men and their wives called at Rabin's to purchase new clothing for their entire family. For the past few weeks the advertising campaign conducted by Rabin's urging the Ex-Service Men to hold on to their Bonus Bonds and to purchase their clothing on credit brought a commendable response.

The store was kept open evenings in order to accommodate those seeking to open credit accounts with the privilege of taking 20 weeks to pay for their purchases. In appreciation of the liberal credit enjoyed, many veterans insisted on paying cash for their purchases. Such veterans received a handsome rebate.

The veterans were waited on by an Ex-Service Man, who served with the 72nd Air Squadron, Serial No. 1,115,093, A. E. F. For the accommodation of such veterans who work during the day, Rabin's will be open evenings. Ex-Service Men, their families, and friends are invited to come. Special Sale Prices Prevail. Late appointments may be made by telephoning 3270.

Broadway: "The King Steps Out." The marvelous recording voice of Grace Moore trills again on the Broadway screen, this time in the role of a country girl who wins an emperor following a bit of intrigue and romance. A costume picture, the story tells of a handsome young ruler who is being forced into an unhappy marriage. He meets a strange girl, falls in love with her, never realizing she is the sister of the girl he is betrothed to marry. Miss Moore sings beautifully and the music is by Kreisler, the direction by Josef Von Sternberg. In support of Miss Moore are Franchot Tone, Walter Connolly, Raymond Walburn, Herman Bing, Victor Jory, Elizabeth Risdon and Frieda Inescourt. The ballets were arranged by Albertina Rasch and the photography was handled by Lucien Ballard. Some of Miss Moore's songs include "Stars in My Eyes," "Madly in Love", "The End Begins" and "Learn How to Lose". Miss Moore remains the top among the romantic singing stars now laboring before the cameras.

Kingston: "Three Wise Guys" and "The Law In Her Hands." A crook drama is the dish being offered at the Kingston in the first and foremost picture on display. It tells of a couple of wise gypsters who have a girl make a play for the son of a wealthy man in the hope a suit may result. But the girl crosses up their plans by marrying the fellow. As it turns out after much complication, the crooks discover that the simple, honest life is the thing after all. Those in the cast are Robert Young, Bruce Cabot, Betty Furness, Raymond Walburn, Donald Meek and Herman Bing. "The Big Noise" is the other full length feature, the tale of a retired millionaire who finds adventure in pretending he's a poor old fellow trying to get along. Guy Kibbee is starred.

Orpheum: "Sutter's Gold." The saga of Sutter, who went west in the early days of the nation and discovered gold only to have it taken from him by squatters is a story well known in California. It has been brought to the screen in a sweeping vein, filled with color, excitement and the tragedy of failure. The players in the giant cast include Edward Arnold, Lee Tracy and Binnie Barnes.

Tomorrow

Broadway: "Big Brown Eyes". Wherein an innocent looking, beautiful but not mentally bright manicurist matches her wits against a New York gang and wins the honors without even scratching her makeup. The story centers around this manicurist, her boy friend who is a progressive young detective and a nest of jewel thieves who will stop at nothing to get their plan through. Along with all the excitement is much humor and romance and the picture dashes along in an entertaining way from rise to fall. The cast offers Gary Grant, Joan Bennett, Walter Pidgeon, Isbahel Jewel, Alan Baxter, Lloyd Nolan and Marjorie Gateson. A Walter Wagner production, directed by Raoul Walsh.

Kingston: Same.

Orpheum: "Everybody's Old Man" and "Java Head." Irving S. Cobb more or less steps into the vacated shoes of Will Rogers in this play that concerns an old fellow whose sage advice helps family and friends through the troubles that crop up during the action of the picture. It is a well done show, cleverly dialogued and acted and Mr. Cobb is supported by a capable list of players. "Java Head" is an oriental melodrama with danger, intrigue and love all lurking in the background. Anna May Wong heads the cast.

London Salutes King on Birthday

London, June 23 (AP).—London saluted King Edward's 42nd birthday with cheers and buttonhole sprays of flowers today.

Crowds gathered early to watch the monarch ride through the streets to the colorful ceremony of trooping the colors of his guards.

Resplendent in a scarlet and gold full-dress uniform, the king led the procession escorted by his three brothers. Later he was to appear on the balcony of Buckingham Palace to receive the applause of those gathered below.

Hundreds of messages came from all parts of the world, the first arriving from Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler of Germany and Emperor Hirohito of Japan.

Edward honored his mother, Queen Mary, in the first honors list announced last night by conferring on her "the title and dignity of Dame Grand Cross of the Royal Victorian Order."

New Bridge Switch For Fire Engines

At the Cornell Fire Station on Abeel street a switch is being installed which will turn the lights at the bridge corner red both ways for a period of 2 to 3 minutes. If the fire truck has to go out the switch is turned on and the lights turn red both ways. A new concrete sidewalk is being laid by the WPA workers at the station.

DEMOCRATIC WOMEN READY FOR CONVENTION

Women are prominent among the Democrats gathering at Philadelphia for the convention. Here are three feminine leaders at headquarters shortly after arrival. Left to right: Mrs. J. Borden Harriman official convention hostess; Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the U. S. Mint, and Miss Mary Dawson, director of women's activities for the Democratic national committee. (Associated Press Photo)

The first official business of the Democratic national convention in Philadelphia was transacted by the national committee, which heard delegate contests. On the rostrum, before the meeting was called to order, were, left to right: Clarence Cannon of Missouri; Chairman James Farley, Secretary W. Forbes Morgan, J. Bruce Kremer of Montana and Rep. John O'Connor of New York. (Associated Press Photo)

LONG TREK ENDS AT CONVENTION

PUTTING THEIR HEADS TOGETHER

Senator William Gibbs McAdoo (left) of California and Chairman James Farley of the Democratic national committee rubbed foreheads when they met in Philadelphia for the Democratic national convention over a happy memory—the part both played in nominating Franklin Roosevelt at the last convention. LEHMAN FOR NEW DEAL

"Only a handful of Democrats" subscribe to the sentiments in the statement attacking the New Deal issued by Alfred E. Smith, and his associates, said Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, of New York, as he arrived in Philadelphia for the Democratic convention. He's shown receiving his badge from Miss Elizabeth Mulrooney, daughter of Edward P. Mulrooney, head of New York's prison system. (Associated Press Photo)

GARNER GETS HONORARY DEGREE

Events Around Convention Town

Philadelphia, June 23 (AP).—Col. Edwin A. Halsey, sergeant-at-arms of the Democratic convention, set out today to unite in common cause Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney, who fought for the heavyweight championship of the world ten years ago in this city.

"I've got Dempsey signed up for an honorary sergeant-at-arms," said Halsey, "and now I'm trying to land Tunney.

"I want to get them to march down the aisle together and take their oath from the platform."

An honorary badge to the convention has been sent to Mrs. Will Rogers—widow of the late actor and political commentator.

"This is the first time in many years," said Col. Halsey, sergeant-at-arms, "that Will Rogers had not been present."

An ice-skating race between a Democratic donkey and Republican elephant is the feature of convention week at a big arena. Each contestant will wear skates on all four feet. The names of the skaters who will be the hind legs and the front legs are a secret.

One of the hardest jobs at the convention is that of the caracicaturists who try to sketch the Democratic leaders while they pause in crowded hotel lobbies. "This is the third man today who has run away before I finished his nose," one of them remarked as his subject strolled off.

GAY ON CONVENTION EVE

Talmadge Replaced By Clark Howell, Sr.

Philadelphia, June 23 (AP)—Governor Eugene Talmadge of Georgia, for many months a political gadfly to the New Deal, today was on the way out of the party's national councils and a Georgia friend of President Roosevelt was on the way in.

The post of national committeeman held by Talmadge was transferred by the Georgia delegation to Clark Howell, Sr., editor and president of the Atlanta Constitution, subject to ratification by the national convention.

FOE OF LOBBYISTS MEETS ONE!

SHOKAN

Shokan, June 22.—Alvin Markle, well known South Olive farmer, was a caller here Sunday.

Robert B. Peck of New York spent the week-end with his family at their mountain road summer place.

Emil Brunnel has added another statue to his group on the grounds of Chalet Indien. The figure adjoins the totem pole, Indian brave and Indian squaw. Mr. Brunnel, a leading New York photographer, is also a painter and has quite a reputation as a trout fisherman.

George S. Pfaus of East Orange, N. J., was the guest Sunday of his brother, the Rev. August Pfaus and family, at the Reformed Church manse.

The aerator down at the reservoir center now is working, much to the delight of the thousands of visitors who came to the Ashokan country each week.

Mrs. Aurie Hasbrouck and Miss Sadie Hasbrouck, former residents of the village center, were numbered among the many callers here Sunday.

Harry Bailey's fine herd of yearling Guernsey heifers at the Beechford Farms is one of the interesting sights of the picturesque North Olive sector.

Paul James has decorated the front of the newly completed Winchell bungalow on the corner and the place has been rented to Richard Marmion and family of Bellaire, L. I., for the summer.

There was little fishing at the dividing weir bridge Sunday. The water in the cove below the apron of the weir is shallow and also somewhat turgid, due probably to the presence of carp. Fishermen were scattered along the shore line however, especially at Winchell's Hill near the main dam. The perfect June weather brought out a large number of motorists. Bathing was in progress below the reservoir and the cool air seemed to make the water just about the right temperature for a swim in the pools.

Thursday, June 23, 1887, the marriage took place of Chase W. Davis to Matie Crispell. The bride and groom were popular and respected members of the younger set in the old village. Mrs. Davis resides on a part of the Crispell farm on the west side of the reservoir.

John Ingalls of Brooklyn has been improving his vacation stay here by making a number of improvements to the grounds of the Ingalls summer home on the state road. One of the landscaping jobs nearly completed by Mr. Ingalls is a retaining wall and shrubbery protection, laid up of field stones along the road side of the spacious lawn of the place.

Charles Dulaff is having a fairly prosperous season at his saw mill along Route 28. Lumber on the yard ready for delivery includes a pile of pine boards destined for construction work at a southern Ulster fruit packing plant. The Dulaff mill is sole reminder in this section of an industry which once boasted a score or more of plants, a majority of them operated by water impounded in small dams along our mountain brooks.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill of Brooklyn are visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Maitland, while the parents are on a trip to Buffalo.

John Secor of the Tonche neighborhood, is our leading alfalfa grower this season. In addition to his old stand which is now ready for the first cutting, Mr. Secor has a new seeding in his oats field. He finds that the legume did well with the oats, each apparently shading the other and being of mutual assistance in weathering the severe drouth. Now, with the help of good rains, the mixed growth is flourishing and probably will produce satisfactory crops.

Perry Succeeds Glass

Philadelphia, June 23 (AP)—Governor George C. Perry today succeeded Senator Carter Glass as the Virginia representative on the 1936 Democratic national platform committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Coffin and daughter Phyllis, and son, Stephen, of Old Greenwich, Conn., were guests for the week-end of Mr. and Mrs. Burton H. Wood. Mr. and Mrs. Coffin and daughter returned Sunday evening, leaving their son for a longer stay here.

Mr. and Mrs. Deyo W. Johnson and children, are enjoying a few days' stay at Asbury Park, N. J.

When birthdays arrive or when an anniversary recalls tender memories, the happy occasion is a good reason for a dinner or supper party. A fitting climax to all the good things would be a cherry-red gelatin dessert, garnished with maraschino cherries and served in a heart-shaped mold

TURF SILKS INSPIRE NEW STYLE

From the silks of the Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt stables, as worn by the jockey above, the fashion world draws inspiration for a new mode in feminine attire for the track. The outfit shown here features a maroon and blue dotted crash swagger jacket with a matching crash jockey cap, both of silk. The dress is of sheer silk. (Associated Press Photo)

MODES OF THE MOMENT

Jacket-frocks, swagger coats, coat-frocks and tunic dresses are proving the smartest costumes for street, vacation and travel wear. They are featured in a great variety of cool fabrics such as chiffons, tub silks, sheer or novelty cottons and plain or hand blocked linens.

White, pastels and gay and sober colors are shown. Skirts are generally plain while bodices are trimmed with tucking, drawn-work, embroidery or buttons.

Sketched above is a smart jacket-frock combining a two-piece dress with a matching three-quarter length jacket of white shantung weave.

The bodice of the short sleeved frock is finished with inserts of colorful crash at front and four large red buttons.

The accompanying swagger jacket is designed with a long stole collar of crash matching the dress trimming. Two slash pockets and widely flared sleeves are other noteworthy details in its design.

A FEW FUNNY ONES

What a grand ice-breaker a joke is! Larry and Bee are in stitches over a few they've been swapping.

There's the one about the young Englishman who was "razzing" the guide at Mt. Vernon, George Washington's home

"Ah, a boxwood hedge" No doubt Washington got this fine hedge from dear old England" said the haughty visitor.

"I guess he did," said the guide "He got the whole blooming country from England"

And then there's the stingy farmer who bawled out the hired man "What do you mean wastin' oil a-carryin' that lantern when you go to call on your best girl?" "When I went courtin' I went in the dark"

"Yeah and look what you got" [illegible]

SALADA GIVES RECIPE FOR MAKING ICE TEA

Everybody likes iced tea It is cooling, refreshing and the most economical of all summer beverages. It is just the right drink for hot, sultry summer days. Make enough each morning to last through the whole day. Serve it at meals, between meals, in the evening—in fact, any time is "Iced Tea Time".

Iced tea is very easy to make, mighty handy to have around, and delightfully delicious and cooling to drink. These qualities as much as anything else probably account for its increasing popularity year after year, as the ideal summer beverage Best of all, it costs so little that it can be made and used without reservation. In fact, it is the most economical beverage in all the world except plain water.

You'll be amazed at the cooling, stimulating qualities of iced tea—especially if a good grade of orange koe and pekoe tea is used—Salada tea, for instance.

Follow these simple directions for best results. Pour a quart of fresh boiling water (be sure is is "bubbling" boiling) over five teaspoonfuls of tea and allow it to steep for five minutes. Then pour the tea off the leaves into an open pitcher, add half a cup of sugar, and the juice of half a lemon Allow to cool at room temperature—then, if time permits—put it in the refrigerator to chill. Add ice only when ready to serve—and then just a cube or two to tinkle in the glass. This amount, one quart, is just right for serving four people Total cost including all ingredients—less than 5 cents a quart.

Three Magnificent Washington Crews Sweep the River Monday

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 23 (AP).—In the wake of their smashing sweep of the intercollegiate championship regatta on the Hudson river, two of the University of Washington's three triumphant eight-oared crews pointed today for the final American Olympic tryouts and the goal of a trip to Berlin to race for world honors.

To fortify their bid in the Olympic tests at Princeton, July 4-5, the all-conquering huskies from Seattle plan to send their crack junior varsity eight, as well as the magnificent varsity boat load that came roaring through the last mile of the four-mile race last evening to dethrone California's defending champions and achieve the first three sweep in twenty-four years.

On Lake Carnegie and over the Olympic 2,000 meters route, equivalent to one mile and a quarter, Washington's oarsmen will be challenged again by five of the college crews they defeated yesterday, as well as several of the east's crack club eights.

But the fashion in which the huskies disposed of their opposition on the Hudson clearly established either of both of Washington's entries as Olympic favorites.

Washington's First Since 1926.

Washington's "big boat," the first husky varsity to come swinging home in front at Poughkeepsie since Al Brisskson, now the head coach, stroked the victorious 1926 crew, looked as though it was practicing for the Olympics in the varsity race. In the words of a coach who was in position to view the proceedings with an unprejudiced eye—Charley Whiteside, late of Harvard—Washington "rowed a superb 2,000 meters on top of a high paddle." He meant, in short, that the huskies coasted for about two and three-quarters miles, keeping themselves well off the pace and then put on the pressure to win going away in the last mile and a quarter.

Showed They Could Take It.

Ever since 1926 Washington has either blown up in the last mile or trained to such an extent, up to that point, that it could not overhaul the pace-makers. The huskies, second three times and third on four other occasions, got the reputation for not being able to "take it" after leaving the shadows of the ancient railroad bridge.

This time they had plenty for that decisive last mile. They won all three races "going away" at the finish. The Washington freshmen, winning the two-mile opener for the third straight year, beat California's Golden Bears by a length. The husky "Jayvees" opened up such a terrific blast of power and speed that they beat the Navy by four good lengths.

The Summaries.

Varsity, Four Miles: Won by Washington, 19.09 3/5 second, California, 19:13 2/5; third, Navy, 19:16 4/5; fourth, Columbia, 19:27 1/5; fifth, Cornell, 19:34 3/5; sixth, Pennsylvania, 19:37 4/5; seventh, Syracuse, 19:44 4/5.

Junior Varsity, Three Miles: Won by Washington, 14:42 1/5; second, Navy, 14:53 4/5; third, Cornell, 14:59 4/5; fourth, Columbia, 15:22 2/5; fifth, Syracuse, 15:25 3/5.

Freshmen, Two Miles: Won by Washington, 10:19 3/5; second, California, 10:23 2/5; third, Navy, 10:31 4/5; fourth, Cornell, 10:33 1/5; fifth, Syracuse, 10:36 2/5; sixth, Columbia, 10:51.

Chance for Baseball Players to Show Wares

Hartford, Conn., June 23.—The Rochester baseball club of the International League, a unit of the St. Louis Cardinal system, will conduct the third annual New England tryout camp for young players seeking a start in the ranks of professional baseball. This year's camp will open July 6 at Hartford, and will be under the direction of Charlie "Pop" Kelchner. Kelchner, one of baseball's outstanding figures both from years of service and results, will be in quest of another Joe Medwick. "Pop" picked up the power house of the Cardinals on New Jersey soil a few years back. Other real "finds" the veteran scout has made include Charley Gelbert, Sparky Adams, Jake Daulbert, Chief Bender and a host of others.

The trial camp will be run for a week, winding up July 11. President Warren Giles of the Rochester Club stated that well over 100 boys made known their intentions of attending the camp if his club conducted one this year. Giles said Branch Rickey, vice-president and general manager of the St. Louis Nationals would attend the camp during a part of the week.

In 1935 over 200 boys worked out in the Williamantic Camp and nearly 40 boys signed contracts. Every player between the ages of 17 and 22 who believes he has the ability to become a major league player is eligible to attend. In addition to indicating their aptitudes they should bring enough money to maintain them for the period of their trial. Room and board can be secured for $1.25 to $1.75 per day. Any boy who signs a contract will have all of his expenses paid to one of the Cardinal training camps when he is requested to report. There is no fee charged for admission to the camp.

Summer camps of this kind have been employed by the Cardinal organization for several years. Any number of outstanding players in the Cardinal organization are products of the rookie camps. In 1935 approximately 2500 boys were observed by Cardinal managers, scouts and coaches.

Boys who wish to know more about the camp should address Charles E. Plummer, care of the Rochester-Baseball-Try-Out Camp in Harbors of Rochester and complete information will be mailed to them.

Grunenwalds and Hedricks Fight for Second Place Tonight

Four games are scheduled in the City Baseball League for this week, the last full week for the first half schedule.

Tonight the Grunenwalds play the Hedricks and must win to keep the brewers from ousting them from second place. The Hedricks are basing their hopes for a victory tonight on the curves of Joe Brown, their pitching ace. The bakers will probably use Big Joe Mahar.

Port Ewen Defeats Baptists.

The Port Ewen softballers annexed another win last evening when they pounded out 16 runs behind the pitching of Marty Nilan to give the Albany Avenue Baptists a 16-5 setback. The lads from across the creek enjoyed two big innings, the fourth and sixth, with Harris clearing the bases with a homer in the sixth. Terwilliger did the heavy hitting for the losers with two triples to his credit. R. and G. Houghtaling formed the battery for the Baptists with Nilan and Hertica working for the winners.

Bethany Loses Again.

The Bethany Chapel team apparently is taking the Brooklyn Dodgers for an example and is putting forth every effort to hold on to last place. Last night they further clinched their position, failing to score until the last inning and dropping their eighth game to the League-leading Fair Street team 13-1.

WASHINGTON WINS ANNUAL INTERCOLLEGIATE REGATTA

Here is the Washington crew (extreme right) flashing across the finish line to win the gruelling four-mile varsity race in the intercollegiate regatta at Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Tagging Major League Bases

(By The Associated Press)

The sports "experts" who have been wrong so often this year that they're developing a special technique in laughing off embarrassing predictions, are beginning to work about their almost unanimous preseason forecast that the Boston Bees would finish in the National League cellar.

The Bees haven't threatened to leave the second division yet but their recent performances against strong opposition have made last place look a long way off.

Following the lead of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who broke Chicago's 15-game winning streak Sunday, the Bees whipped the Cubs 5 to 1 yesterday to hang up their sixth victory in eight games. That loss applied the brakes more firmly to Chicago's rush toward the top as the Cardinals outslugged the Phillies 8-6, increasing their lead to 1½ games.

New York's Yankees likewise increased their lead, whipping the White Sox 9-6 while the Champion Detroit Tigers edged out Boston's Red Sox 8-7 to regain fourth place in the American League standing.

The Washington Senators, who had been tied with the Tigers, were rained out at St. Louis while Dusty Rhodes pitched the Athletics to a 4-3 victory over the third-place Cleveland Indians.

The National League race tightened up even more when the New York Giants, trying to come back from fourth place, put on one of their best slugging exhibitions to sink the Pittsburgh Pirates 11 to 5. Cincinnati's Reds maintained their slim fifth-place margin over Boston by trouncing the Dodgers 7 to 2.

Natural Bridges

There are several natural bridges. A famous one is in Virginia. Three very large ones, designated as national monuments are in Utah. The largest of these is 222 feet high; 65 feet thick at the top of the arch; the arch itself is 28 feet wide with a span of 261 feet. The height of the span is 157 feet. Natural Bridge in Virginia is privately controlled. It is 212 feet high with a span of 90 feet. The bridge spans Cedar creek, tributary to the James river.

CONFINE YOUR BIRD HUNTING TO CAMERA

Is Appeal of United States Biological Survey.

Washington.—If you must shoot birds, shoot them with a camera, youthful nimrods are being asked by the United States biological survey. One reason for this appeal is the thinning population of birds, partly due to the use of guns and sling-shots in the hands of young, inexperienced hunters.

"One of the birds that has caused such an appeal, is the pileated woodpecker," says the National Geographic society. "This 'dandy' of bird society is slow in flight, big, noisy and conspicuous, therefore a first rate target.

"Muffled ax blows, that make tree lovers cry 'Woodman, spare that tree!' may often be traced, not to a man, but to the noisy pileated woodpecker. When tracked down, this dressy grub-eater is usually found chopping away at some dead stub or branch. Digging deep, he extracts and devours thousands of larval enemies of live trees, but does little damage to green wood.

"At rest against a tree trunk in the upright posture characteristic of woodpeckers, pileatus (to use his more convenient Latin name), seems to be clad in black, except for his brilliant scarlet crested skull cap and red stripes (absent in Mrs. P.) along the cheeks. But in flight, white underparts and spots and streaks on wings, neck, cheeks, and throat, flash out in contrast to black plumage as he sweeps along.

Noisy in Mating Season.

"Pileated woodpeckers are particularly noisy during the mating season and after their children are off their hands late in the spring. Their cackling call resembles that of the flicker, but it is louder, more ringing and often more hesitant.

"Special adjustments in the brain of pileatus protect it from the terrific shock of constant woodchopping. Large as a crow and, next to the now almost extinct ivory billed, biggest of all the woodpeckers, he packs a punch that recalls the action of a compressed-air drill in breaking up paving. With his long tough bill, this hard-hitting flyer may peel off long strips of bark to simplify his search for food. Chips of wood six or eight inches long and as wide as a man's hand, have been hewn from some trees.

"Like the holes in the posts of a rail fence, pileatus' excavations in tree trunks are squarish and mortiselike; not round as are those of some other members of the woodpecker tribe. Of course, he chops out the entranceway to his nest, but then again he may cut holes with no other apparent aim than to search for wiggly worms, or just for the fun of it. Occasionally the cavity he chops in one direction will meet one projected from another.

Insects for Every Course.

"Pileatus deserves every bit of his high reputation as a tree surgeon. He 'gets under the skin' of trees and hauls out destructive wood eaters. Ants and woodborers, which together inflict enormous damage on timber, make up 61 per cent of his diet. Another 11 per cent is composed of miscellaneous insects, spiders, and millipedes.

"A barbed, horny-tipped tongue helps him to lap up scattering bugs. It is true that in the fall and winter, when he has a struggle to find food (he never migrates north or south with the seasons), he eats considerable vegetable food, but most of this is wild fruits, nuts, and seeds. The farmer need fear no injury to crops or farmyard trees from him.

"Apparently not in any hurry about nest building, a pair of pileated woodpeckers often take a month to prepare the cavity in the chosen tree. Sometimes the mother bird lays eggs before the interior decoration is complete. Muffled knocking in the tree, days after eggs are laid, tells of trimming and remodeling still in progress.

"Pileatus nests usually in a dead tree, 15 to 50 feet from the ground. The actual cavity, in which the eggs are laid on a nest of fine chips, may be as much as three feet deep. Two exits are not uncommon, so that when an enemy enters by one, pileatus and family may slip out by the back door."

Oldest Botanic Garden

The oldest botanic garden in the New world is the principal attraction on St. Vincent, in the Windward islands. It was established in 1763, and it was to obtain breadfruit tree specimens for it in 1787 that the British naval vessel, the Bounty, sailed to the South seas, where the famous mutiny took place. Eventually Captain Bligh of the Bounty returned to St. Vincent with 530 choice specimens for the garden.

WEST SHOKAN

West Shokan, June 23.—The "fish fry" supper served by the Ladies' Aid Friday evening at the Baptist Church proved most outstandingly successful both socially and financially. The menu, and especially the savory browned fillet of halibut, served piping hot on heaping platters, brought praise from everyone. Hot mashed potatoes, bread, butter, carrots, baked beans, salad, pickles, lettuce, coffee and finally came strawberry short cake to completely fill the last last vestige of any possible remaining corner of the stomach. The serving, under supervision of the president, Mrs. Nettie Jones, was tactfully done by members of the Ladies' Aid and comely young high school students. Donations of money and foodstuffs for the supper practically covered the entire cost and the very tidy sum of $39.50 was realized through the affair. This most loyal and kindly cooperation shown by donors and supper patrons is greatly appreciated by the Ladies' Aid Society, thanks for which is gratefully extended to all by the president, Mrs. Jones.

There was a very nice tuhnout Sunday morning at the summer opening of weekly preaching services held at the Baptist Community Church. The speaker for the occasion was William Mender of Mettacahonts, who has had extensive experience in religious work. He preaches the old fashioned gospel, and his message, "The Cross of Christ," was delivered in a practical and well pleasing manner. Mrs. Chase Davis presided as organist and the choir consisted of Mrs. Herbert Hyde, Mrs. Roy Van Demark, Miss Jennie Kerr and E. C. Davis. Next Sunday at 10:30 o'clock, Mr. Bender will again address the congregation. Everyone is most cordially invited to attend and help make these community gospel meetings a well deserved success, with the certainty to hear a well learned and inspiring message.

There being no other Fourth of July celebrations scheduled about the reservoir section, the West Shokan Ladies' Aid will endeavor to carry on this year and keep alive the spirit of the nation's birthday and during the afternoon and evening will hold a festival and informal old home gathering at the Baptist Church grounds. Refreshments will be on sale and during the evening a program of speaking and entertainment in the church auditorium will be given. Everyone is urged to put his shoulder to the wheel and help to make the celebration successful.

Mrs. Grace Winchell of Sunny Cliff Farm is recovering from a painful injury sustained at her home last Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Winchell were preparing a hurried order for dressed chickens and while carrying a kettle of scalding water in one hand and butcher knives in the other she tripped over a loose board in the path and fell heavily. Her left forearm and hand was burned badly. Besides Mrs. Winchell received a cut on the right arm and variety of more or less severe bruises.

Among Sunday visitors here were several members of a family of well known former residents, who moved from West Shokan to Kingston 32 years ago. They were: Mrs. Cora Winnie and her eldest and youngest sons, Henry and Chauncey, also the latter's wife and their six year old son. They now reside at Lake Katrine, where the son, Chauncey, operates the Abby Cook farm. Mrs. Winnie, who is the mother of 12 children, is the widow of Harvey Winnie, who has for many years been employed as foreman of the Ulster and Delaware "floating gang".

Peiping, June 23 (AP)—A Japanese soldier, armed with a bayonet, forced Capt. Henry S. Jernigan, Hopkinsville, Ky., from a sidewalk today to clear a path for Japanese civilins.
